

I think that frontal crash tests are a good thing. You are, however, going about it all wrong. If you make cars out of rubber when people get in accidents theyll just bounce off and be ok. Also, if you make the maximum speed for cars to go approxiamtely 5-8 mph, hit and run accidents won't be nearly as fatal. I appreciate your consideration of my idea.